Co-payments
Co-payments are due at the time medical service is provided (Native Americans are exempt). Co-payments may be waived after reaching an annual maximum.

The co-payment amounts are:
$5 per prescription and non-prescription drugs for people only receiving Medicaid (not receiving Medicare).

$7 per dental visit; outpatient doctor, clinic, or urgent care visit; including therapy or behavioral health sessions.

$20 per emergency room visit

$30 per inpatient hospital admission

For someone who receives both Medicare and Medicaid, Prescription Benefits are provided through the Medicare Part D program. Check with provider what co-pays will be.

The Working Disabled
Individuals Medicaid
Program (WDI or Medicaid Category 074) provides health insurance to persons with a disability who are working.

How Long It Take?

➢ Regulations state caseworkers must act upon applications and send notice of approval, denial, or delay within 60 days of the date of application. Get receipts.

➢ MAD will delayed or denied application if the application or documentation is not complete.

➢ If MAD finds you ineligible, you may request a reconsideration or appeal within specified time frames.

➢ Eligibility begins the month of approval but you may be eligible for up to three (3) months retroactive Medicaid coverage if you request it.

➢ A re-determination of eligibility is made every twelve (12) months. You must have qualifying earned income in each quarter to maintain eligibility.
Do I qualify in 2015?
You have to be:

- 18 years of age or older;
- Receive SSDI (Social Security Disability Insurance) or have paperwork showing a severe medical/psychological condition;
- Working and earning $1,220 a quarter or $407 a month in 2015;
- Have unearned income (such as SSDI, private pensions, alimony, spouses income, etc.) of less than $1,486/gross per month;
- Have resources under $10,000 ($15,000 if married). One car, a home you live in, and most retirement funds (IRA, 401k, etc. - if they have not been accessed) are not counted.

Good News!
In 2015, a person can earn up to $59,090 a year (changes every April) in earnings, maybe more if you have deductions.

If you earn over $4,924 per month you may still qualify for WDI Medicaid by submitting proof of qualified work expense deductions. Talk to your benefits advisors form more information.

Let the ISD caseworker know if you also receive Medicare. Medicaid may pay for your Medicare premiums and deductibles.
